History is once more in the making as Malen Chiefdom in the Pujehun District continues to benefit from SOCFIN Agricultural Company Sierra Leone Limited. The company has lived up to its Corporate Social Responsibilities. The latest being Tuesday October 16th 2013 when it officially handed over specially designed Solar Energy Street Light poles now erected at strategic locations in the Chiefdom Headquarters town of Sahn in war-ravaged Pujehun District, to the local authorities. This is the first time that Sahn is enjoying street light. All thanks to SOCFIN.

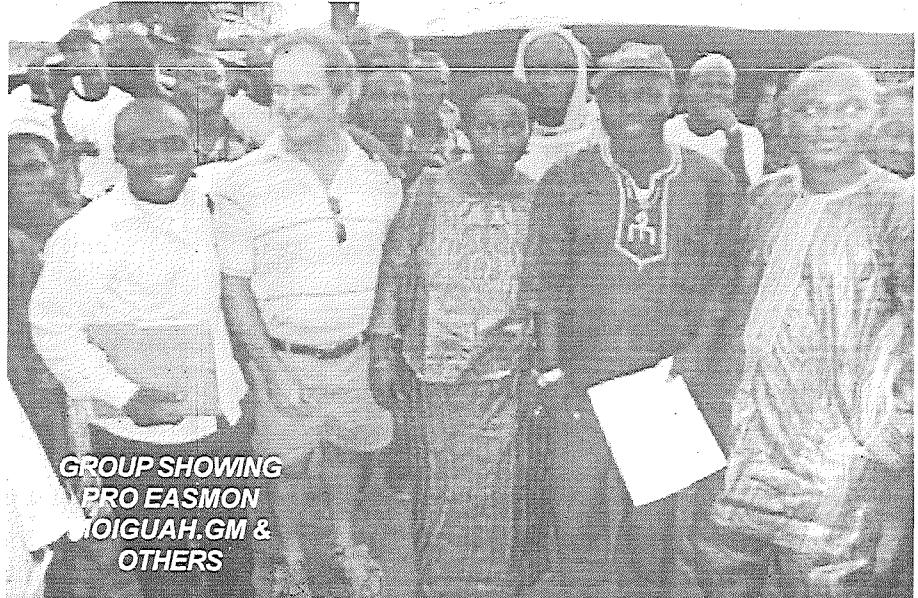

The solar energy street poles similar to those in Europe numbering fifteen costing three thousand dollars each totalling one hundred and ninety three million, five hundred thousand Leones. The solar street lights are turned on every evening.

Speaking at an impressive handing over ceremony, SOCFIN's General Manager Philip Tonks first and foremost commended the peace loving people of Malen Chiefdom together with their determined local Chiefs for what he termed as their overwhelming support of the operations of the company which he stated will not go unrewarded. He therefore encouraged all not to relent but to support the company's efforts. Speaking further the soft-spoken General Manager referred to the day as a red lettered day in the history of Malen Chiefdom and in turn cautioned the people to take proper care of the streetlights which he described as unique and made of sterner stuff.

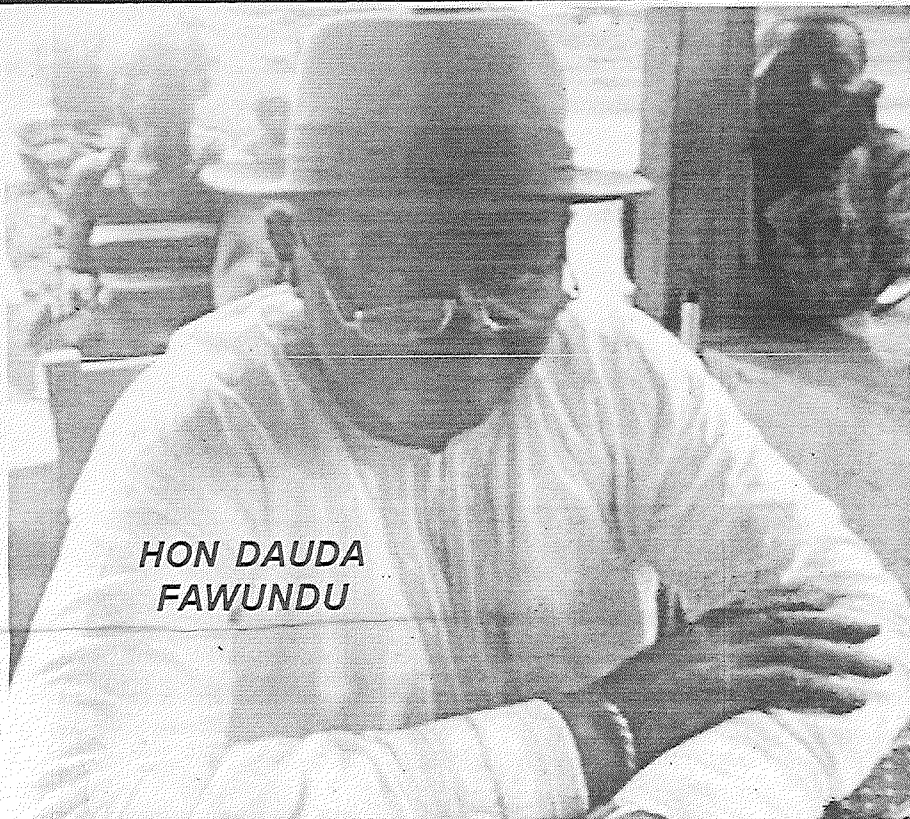

The General Manager further reassured residents of another round of their corporate social responsibility which is the extension of the resident Health centre to the status of a full time hospital to be serviced by a medical practitioner for Sahn and its environs.

In his statement, the sitting member of Parliament for Constituency 88 in the Pujehun District, Hon Dauda Fawundu used the occasion to lavish praise on the host Paramount Chief Hon BVS Kebbie for been development orien-
